SERVICE

David Brown Radicon is dedicated to customer satisfaction. Such dedication is central to the company's philosophy.

For well over a century the name David Brown has been known the world over for gears and power transmission. Quality has always been the cornerstone, not only in design and manufacture, but also in the service that stands firmly behind the name.

In the stringent commercial and technical conditions of today's marketplace, there is no organization better equipped to build on tradition and maintain its leading position. Customers and distributors are assured of the levels of co-operation and support that befits such an outstanding range of products.

Wherever Radicon units are in use there is a fully comprehensive technical and after sales service in support. A David Brown Radicon is a total package, a quality product and a quality service, year after year.
